

Reliability Metrics Working Group Response – ALR 1-2

Maintaining the Required Amount of Reserve

Currently, the amount of reserve maintained by a given Balancing Authority or Reserve Sharing Group is a self reported number and all entities report they are maintaining the required amount. Therefore, no meaningful information or trend would be gained from such a metric. There are NERC Standards that track the performance of the respective Balancing Authorities and Reserve Sharing Group associated with the required amount of reserve, which would provide more meaningful results (Refer to ALR 2-4).

RMWG Consensus: Considered however not advanced